A LIST of the Names of those who AUDACIOUSLY continue to counteract the UNITED SENTIMENTS of the BODY of Merchants throughout NORTH-AMERICA; by importing British Goods contrary to the Agreement.

(In King-Street, almost opposite Vernon's Head.

James McMasters,
(On Treat's Wharf.

Patrick McMasters,
(Opposite the Sign of the Lamb.

John Mein,
(Opposite the White-Horse, and in King-Street.

Ame & Elizabeth Cummings,
(Opposite the Old Brick Meeting House, all of Boston.

And, Henry Barnes,
(Trader in the Town of Marlboro'.

HAVE, and do still continue to import Goods from London, contrary to the Agreement of the Merchants.—They have been requested to Store their Goods upon the same Terms as the rest of the Importers have done, but absolutely refuse, by conducting in this Manner.

IT must evidently appear that they have prefered their own little private Advantage to the Welfare of America: It is therefore highly proper that the Public should know who they are, that have at this critical Time, sordidly detached themselves from the public Interest; and as they will be deemed Enemies to their Country, by all who are well-wishers to it; so those who afford them their Countenance or give them their Custom, must expect to be considered in the same disagreeable Light.

To the Men called the Printers.

Please to insert the following in thy next Vehicle of Intelligence, and thou will oblige one who wishes thee well.

Friend Colborn Barrel,

BEING one of that sort of people whom sinful men in the flesh call Quakers, and hearing that friend Sandeman and thee had forsaken the whore of Babylon, and gathered a church in Boston, made up of conscientious tradesmen agreable to the primitive times, I have for some time past felt my spirit moved within me, to take up the cross and leave Susannah the wife of my bosom with the care of our tender offspring, and take a journey to Boston in order to make thee a visit: Thy doctrine which the letter-learned Rabbies call passive obedience and non-resistance, is very agreable to our friends, and savours much of the truth, that is, when our Governors exercise any authority over us which they receive from the constitution of the government we are under. Paul testifieth unto us, that the powers that be are ordained of God; and we are commanded to yield obedience for conscience sake; so far thou art right, and I have had some hopes that in a short time thou might come over to our society, but happening to meet with a paper called the Boston Chronicle, I felt myself moved in spirit to read a discourse wrote by thee, which seemed to be much in favour of thy doctrine—Alas! how are the mighty fallen; instead of being edified by thy discourse, it served only to fill my mind with trouble; verily I say unto thee, thou art yet in darkness, and the light is not in thee; thou givest flattering titles to men contrary to the scripture; thy stile is the enticing words of man's wisdom, and thy language is the language of the beast; thou bestowest on the C—n—ll—s those imps of Satan, the high sounding name of honourable; thou art not ashamed to dignify that seed of the Serpent F—x's B——d with the lofty title Excellency; and according to thy own discourse, thy heart is lifted up with pride in being ranked among those sons of wickedness. Friend Colborn, I am afraid thy doctrine of passive obedience is carried to a dangerous length. Paul never meant to insinuate that five millions of honest people are in duty bound to submit their lives and fortunes to the absolute disposal of five or six hundred men at three thousand miles distant. If thou art of opinion that christianity has made any alteration in mens civil rights or duties, it is highly incumbent on thee to tell us what passage of scripture there is to support thy opinion; if thou art not able to do this, thou must suppose that the first preachers of the gospel were deficient in prescribing rules for the christian life of their followers, and that friend Sandeman and thee, and a few other moderns, are some how appointed to supply that deficiency. The passage of scripture referred to above, is not to be understood in so large a sense as some will have it; for it appears plainly from the manner of Paul's discourse, that some inconsiderable persons in the church at Rome fancied, that in commencing believers of the gospel, and so becoming subjects of Jesus Christ, they were freed from the jurisdiction of the civil magistrate. It is also plain, that the only point Paul had in view, was to correct so dangerous an error, and set them right in that particular, and not to oblige christians to submit tamely to any set of men who might assume an authority over their fellow subjects, to the utter subversion of all publick liberty. So much at present from thy friend in the light.

A Commemoration of Frances Barnard, Turn to the Index to Find the Agreements.

Messieurs EDES & GILL,

Please to insert the following Extracts from Commodore Hood's Letters to the Secretary of the Admiralty.

Boston, Nov. 11, 1768. "I Beg you will be pleas'd to acquaint my Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, that I am just arriv'd here in ten days from Halifax, and find every thing perfectly quiet, and I flatter myself from what I have been told that things will remain so for the winter"——Nov. 22.—"At present things here are very quiet, and I flatter myself will remain so till the resolutions of parliament are known, what turn they will then take is uncertain. The spirit of opposition to the acts of parliament of Great-Britain is as high as ever, and general throughout the colonies; it therefore seems very prudent and necessary to be as strong in all points and in all respects as possible, and there is no saying now how far the Rippon may be essentially serviceable in the spring. And as the disturbances in Virginia, and other provinces to the southward of this are as great as they well can be without ACTUAL REBELLION, I have judg'd it right upon consulting with General Gage to keep that ship in Virginia till farther orders——If the winter resolutions at home (upon which the obedience of the colonies wholly depends) should restore affairs here to any degree of order, I shall immediately send Capt. Thompson to England".——Nov. 25.—"Disturbances seem again to be renewed at New-York."—Dec. 7.—"I beg to observe that every thing here remains quiet, and I flatter myself that order will be restor'd in a few months. The resolutions of parliament will determine clearly whether the additional naval force of the Rippon and Hussar can be of any service"——Dec. 12.—"I beg now to acquaint you that the people here are perfectly quiet, and I am pretty sure they will remain so till the resolutions of parliament are known, which I am in hopes will restore order—There does not appear to me the least probability of the peoples taking arms——indeed some few of the Convention took pains to bring the ignorant and lower class into that mind, and possibly might have succeeded, had not the troops arriv'd as they did——The Council are now sitting without the the Governor, and preparing addresses, &c. to England. His Excellency has told them how unconstitutional they act, but they still go on":——And was you wise enough Sir, really to believe his Excellency when he told you it was unconstitutional; and still wiser to write it home to a publick Board, that has nothing to do with such matters, and to give for your authority the man, who in some companies, we are told, you affected to despise, and others, you appear'd to court. The inconsistences in your letters are too obvious to escape the notice of a common reader: It is needless therefore to remark upon the various accounts you give of the state of affairs in America. You say that "things here at present are very quiet", and in the same breath that "the spirit of opposition to the acts of parliament of Great Britain is as high as ever", and express your doubt whether even additional measures could "restore affairs here to any degree of order." You observe that "every thing here remains quiet", and yet you flatter yourself that "order will be restor'd in a few months". And again, tho' you acquaint the Secretary of the Board that "the people here are perfectly quiet", yet you are in hopes that the resolutions of parliament (which at that time did not exist) will "restore order"—Can it be at all wonder'd at that the nation should appear by the measures taken by administration, to have been altogether ignorant of the true state and temper of the Colonies, when such unintelligible accounts are transmitted by the servants and officers of the Crown in America!

But pray Commodore Hood, tell us who were the few of the Convention that took so much pains to induce the lower class of people to take arms? we never before heard any thing of this business, and now believe it to be nothing more than a false idea, begot by your prompter, the ingenious Mr. Scarlet with a pension, and bro't forth by you; and for which Mr. Cleveland and the Admiralty were to become sponsors or god-fathers.

In the last paragraph of these epistles, we hear the commodore sounding out "The Council are now sitting without the Governor!" And what then Sir? Why, the Council have a right no doubt to sit without the Governor; aye, and to address his Majesty and the parliament, if they please, without the Governor. You ought to have known this before you attempted to write upon matters relating to the civil constitution of the province: And you are now told that in many of the colonies his Majesty's council WILL NOT sit to do business in their legislative capacity, while the Governor is present. If we mistake not, so near as the province of New-York, where you may remember some ten or a dozen years ago to have been master and commander of a sloop of war, and where you then might have informed yourself, that the Governor never pretends, and no other Governor ought, to sit in council while they are deliberating business in their legislative capacity.—But the truth is, you wanted to write something to Mr. Secretary Cleveland; and on this occasion you had an opportunity of mentioning his Excellency's great name, as with some sort of men, the highest stations are always the best authorities. It is probable, your suggestion that the people would have been prevail'd upon by those few of the convention, to have taken up arms, if the troops had not arrived as they did, was grounded upon the same kind of authority: for it has been very credibly reported that another gentleman of high station, tho' not then the highest in the Massachusetts, express'd in your company a great satisfaction in the troops being station'd there, saying that government could not have been supported without them. We have reason to believe this gentleman will not care to deny it. It does not yet appear that he has wrote this sentiment to the ministry: If he has not, perhaps he might think a hint now and then in conversation, well placed, would answer the purpose as well.

Some gentlemen lately arrived from Halifax tell us, that the C—r still professes to be a very sincere friend to the province. But if we may form any idea of his sincerity from his own letters, which probably he never tho't would get into the hands of the public, we might think it almost as absurd for him, as for BERNARD or PAXTON to make such professions: And that this naval gentleman, whose consequence even in his own sphere, remains yet to be made apparent, had really lost sight of himself in making such declarations—It is not uncommon for those who have been suspected to have even betrayed a country, to wish for its esteem: Few men are so abandoned, as to be willing to have the character of public enemies, if they can possibly avoid it, however conscious they may be that they deserve it. The Pensioner himself was heard to lament that he had lost the confidence of his fellow-citizens and countrymen!—But the province of Massachusetts, we dare say, does not consider the friendship and influence of the C—r to be of any consequence in the present misunderstanding between the two countries: No nor even that of the Pensioner, whose peculiar obligations to his native country, should have led him to have openly espoused its cause when in distress, and to have distinguished himself by the warmest attachment to its RIGHTS "in the worst of Times."—The Colonists can defend their own RIGHTS as men and subjects; and all they desire of any of the servants of the crown, is to confine themselves in their public and private representations, to the truth: They do not want to carry any point by friendship or interest, if such friendship or interest is to be procured or purchased. They have claimed their RIGHTS with decency, aswell as freedom; for this they have been grossly vilified and abused by men who have found their account in it. But the time will come, and the colonists will not, nor ought the nation ever to be satisfied till it shall come, when those men who for their own private advantage have disturbed the repose of their Sovereign, and fomented discord between the subjects in Britain and America, shall be made PUBLIC EXAMPLES, in terror to others.

We have attentively read over the whole Budget of false, scandalous, stupid and even contradictory letters and memorials that have been return'd from England, and published in Boston; and in truth, the only letter that appears among them to be written with a fair mind, or like an honest faithful English officer, who meant to confine his representations to his own business, is that which is addressed to the admiralty, and signed——SMITH. Ne sutor ultra crepidam.

Some of the gentlemen of the southern colonies will no doubt remark upon the C—rs representation of their being so near to ACTUAL REBELLION. It is now more than a year since the last of these pithy epistles was wrote, and yet we hear nothing from any other quarter, of this said REBELLION, which was in the writer's noddle.

Is it not surprizing that a minister of state should pay any regard to the little trifling anonymous letters and papers that were sent home, written probably by our old acquaintance Shan-ap-morgan, Charles Froth, or some of their expectants and dependents. And is it not still more surprizing that such anonymous papers should be introduc'd into the house of Commons, and consider'd as having any weight in evidence against as loyal a people as the King reigns over? How will the history of these things read hereafter, when this infatuation shall be at an end? Will not the Historian blush, and feel small, while he is handing down such ridiculous trifles to posterity? and will he not be glad to push on to pages more becoming the dignity of a British minister and a British p——t, to relieve his mind from such humiliating distress?

Newport, Rhode-Island, PHILADELPHOS.
Dec. 20, 1769.

Messieurs EDES & GILL,

IN the Boston Chronicle of the 7th Instant was inserted the following Advertisement.

"Monday last arrived here (they say) Capt. Copithorne after a tedious Passage from Bristol. The Price of Nails and Window Glass having been greatly advanced, the Public are now informed that between 4 and 500 Casks of Nails, and between 3 and 400 Boxes of Glass, have been imported into this Port in Capts. Watt and Copithorne, who arrived here a few Days ago from Bristol."

The Public may be led by this Advertisement to conclude that a large Quantity of Glass and Nails imported in those Vessels were exposed to Sale in this Town; which is far from being the Case.—The Committee of Inspection now inform the Public, That 219 Cask Nails 230 Boxes Glass 16 Casks solid Pewter 10 of hollow ditto. 2 Bundles Warming-Pan (Handles 12 Casks Brass Batters 30 Half Faggots of Steel 3 Hogsheads Ironmongery 2 Cases Merchandize 12 Bundle Frying Pans	Imported from Bristol in the John Galley, Capt. Watt, are re-shipt on board the Lydia, Captain Hood, for Bristol.

118 Boxes Glass 83 Cask Nails	Imported in said Vessel were for Persons at Providence, Portsmouth and Halifax, and are shipt to those Places
20 Boxes Glass 30 Cask Nails	Were for Persons not residing in this Town.
50 Cask Nails	belong'd to a Stranger that came in Capt. Copithorn who is reshipping them out of this Province.
87 Cask Nails 66 Boxes Glass	Being the Remainder of the Glass and Nails in those Vessels, were consigned to Persons who lately acceded to the Agreement, and had no Opportunity to countermand their Orders, and have readily delivered them up to be stored till a general Importation; so that notwithstanding the above Advertisement, the Public may be assured there is not a single Cask of Nails, or Box of Glass more for Sale in this Town, than there was before the Arrival of those Vessels.

Messieurs EDES & GILL,

Please to give the following a Place in your valuable Paper, and you will very much oblige your humble Servant,
JOHN LANGDON.

IN the Manifest of Capt. Copithorn's Cargo, published in the Boston Chronicle, I find my Name against four Articles, which as they are not explicitly enough express'd, I would inform the Public what they are.

1 Cask Pewter——a small Cask containing 10 Dozen Candle-Moulds.
3 Truffes Haberdashery——are 3 Matts, containing each a Bolt of Twine-Sacking, of a particular Fabric for pressing Sperma-Cæti.
1 Iron Pan——100 Gallons.
1 Cask Nails——a small Kegg of Nails to balance the Account.

ALL Utensils, or Materials, for carrying on a valuable Manufacture, which could not easily be obtained here, when I sent for them, (last January) the Importation of which (I apprehend) in no Way counteracts or interferes, with the true Spirit and Intention of the Agreement of the Merchants for not importing, which however I never sign'd, as I was never applied to.

IT having been falsly reported of me the Subscriber, that I have imported Goods from England contrary to the Agreement of the Merchants of this Town, particularly Gloves and Fur Trimming, and Earthen Ware, &c. I hereby declare, I have not (bo't of any Importer contrary to the Agreement of the Merchants) nor imported any of those Things or any other Article whatever, save one Box of sundry Trifles, which when in London in the Year 1768, I bo't at Vendue, the whole Cost of which was 37*s.* 6*d.* and one small Box of Plate for my own Use, and contained only one small Salver, and one Pair of Butter Boats, which was forgot; since which I have only a small Box, containing twelve Pair of Shoes for my own Use, which are now in the public Store—I would also inform my Customers and others, that I have to sell, choice neat Furr Trimmings, and Men and Womens Gloves of most Sorts, and Earthen & Glass Ware, and most Sorts of English Goods suitable for the Season, which were all imported in the Year 1768.

Boston, Dec. 25, 1769. SAMl. DASHWOOD.

MARBLEHEAD, December 9, 1769.

The Goods imported from London, the last Fall, are now opened; and all the Importers in this Town, that came into the Agreement of Non-Importation, or that gave their Honours to conform to it, that had Goods come to their Hands, on their own Accounts, or Commissions, which were not admitted by said Agreement for the carrying on of the Cod-Fishery, have been delivered up to the Committee, and stored: But are sorry that we are under the disagreeable Neceffity to acquaint the Public, that Messrs. Jacob Fowle & Son, Thomas Robie, Israel Foster, and John Sparhawk, Importers of Goods from Great-Britain, have and do refuse coming into the said Agreement, or storing the Goods they imported last Fall, that are not excepted in the said Agreement, but obstinately perfist in offering of them for Sale, contrary to the Spirit and Practice of almost all the Importers of British Manufactures in America; thereby demonstrating to the Publick, that they sordidly prefer their private Interest to the public Good.

BOSTON, December 25.

About the 13th of November last, a Son of Mr. Jacob Davis of Charlton, four Years of Age, was bit in the Throat by a Mad-Dog—the Wound soon healed.—No Appearance of Maniaism 'till about thirty Days, when at the Full of the Moon, the Child being at his Grandfather's Deacon Thomas Davis of Oxford, was seized with a Naucia Reaching, and Aversion to any Food, the Day following the Symptoms increased a Wildness in the Eyes, with irregular Gestures, inconsistent Talk, Rifability and with Anxiety; then followed in a few Hours the Hydrophobia or Aversion to Water or any Liquid, with Ferocity in his Countenance, canine Actions, Swelling in the Face, and a large Discharge of Salivia or Frothing at the Mouth, with frequent convulsive Motions—the next Forenoon Death closed the Scene. After his Death, his Body swelled, and lived Spots appeared upon his Stomach, &c.

We hear that on Wednesday last a Coasting Sloop from Kennebeck bound for this Port, commanded by Thomas Smart, suddenly sunk on her Passage. There were about ten People on board, among whom were several Passengers, who had but just Time to get into the Boat, in which they were obliged to continue one Night before they could reach the Shore, during which Time two of the Passengers died with Cold, one of which was Mr. —— Stinson, a Student at Harvard College. The others were much frozen.

On Friday Morning last, the honorable Richard Reeve, Esq; first Clerk of the honorable Board of Commissioners, set out on a Tour to New-York, and as 'tis said he is an Officer of great Trust and Confidence with their honors; 'tis hoped and expected that his Majesty's true and loyal Subjects on the Road, will pay all proper Respect to his distinguished Rank and Character.——As his Departure was very sudden, 'tis tho't that he is charged with Affairs of the utmost Importance to the adjusting Matters between the Turks and Russians.——Mr. John Robinson did not go with him.

The Rev. Mr. Whitefield is arrived at South-Carolina.

We hear that the Reverend Corporation of HARVARD COLLEGE have unanimously elected the Rev'd. Mr. SAMUEL LOCK, Pastor of the Church in Sherburn, to preside over that Society;—and that the said Choice has been unanimously consented to by the Honourable and Reverend Board of Overseers.

Friday last the large Mansion House of JOHN DENNIE, Esq; of Little Cambridge, was consumed by Fire.

Extract of a Letter from Halifax, dated Decem. 1, 1769.

"In the Postscript of your last Letter to me, you ask me, What doth the News-Papers mean by a French Priest at Halifax with a £.100 per Annum? In Answer to which I would inform you, that this was a French Priest which died some Years ago; and the Indians of the St. John's Tribe being desirous of one of that Profession, apply'd to Government, and they have granted them a popish Priest with the Salary of £. 100 a Year. He does not reside at Halifax, but chiefly at the River St. John's; he is here sometimes, and I suppose our Catholics are glad to see him. The Ministry at Home I suppose have not so bad an Opinion of that infamous Religion that you and I have."
